THE FIS ALPINE SKI WORLD CUP RETURNS TO TARVISIO AFTER 15 YEARS

For the fourth time in history, Tarvisio will host a stage of the 2025/2026 FIS Alpine Ski World Cup. In a thrilling change of venue, the speed events traditionally held in Cortina d'Ampezzo will take place in Tarvisio in 2026, on the iconic Di Prampero slope.

TARVISIO - TARVISIO, WHERE SPORT UNITES

In the beating heart of the Julian Alps, Tarvisio is far more than just a ski resort—it's a crossroads of cultures, nations, and sporting passion. Here, where Italy, Austria, and Slovenia meet, every slope, trail, and peak tells a story of borders, challenge, and unity.

At the center of this unique setting rises Monte Lussari—a spiritual and sporting icon of the region. From its summit unfolds the legendary Di Prampero slope, one of the most thrilling downhill runs in the Alpine arc. With over 1,000 meters of vertical drop, it's a proving ground for expert skiers and World Cup athletes alike—where technique, speed, and breathtaking views converge into one unforgettable experience. Every turn is a passage between earth and sky, between challenge and triumph.

Here, the concept of the Three Borders takes on a symbolic dimension—not as separation, but as connection. In Tarvisio, sport becomes a unifying force, breaking down barriers and building bridges—between languages, cultures, and athletes from across Europe. Competing here means more than racing:

it means connecting, learning, and growing.

Tarvisio is a constant sporting challenge—and at the same time, an open invitation to share in something greater. The Three Borders become the beating European heart of alpine skiing, where competition meets camaraderie, and rivalries evolve into mutual respect and cooperation. When snow blankets the landscape and silence settles over the woods, the Di Prampero transforms into an elite training ground for national teams and a natural spectacle for spectators. During international competitions, the atmosphere in Tarvisio crackles with adrenaline—fans arrive from all over Europe, and the race village pulses with life, just steps from the slopes.

Tarvisio made its World Cup debut in 2007, with Austria's Renate Götschl taking the Super-G, the USA's Julia Mancuso winning the downhill, and Nicole Hosp of Austria claiming the combined. The event returned in 2009, when the legendary Lindsey Vonn won the Super-G, while Germany dominated the downhill (Stechert) and the combined (Riesch).

In 2011, Vonn once again took the Super-G, Anja Paerson of Sweden triumphed in the downhill, and Tina Maze of Slovenia secured the combined victory.

THE FIELD OF PLAY

4.1 THE DI PRAMPERO SLOPE: WHERE SKIING BECOMES LEGEND

Where the Julian Alps plunge into the valley and speed meets history, an iconic slope is born: the Di Prampero. Pride of Tarvisio, cradle of Italian speed. A run that makes amateurs dream and champions tremble.

FROM HEROIC BEGINNINGS TO A WORLD-CLASS TRACK

1958

THE ADVENTURE BEGINS

A pioneering gondola whisks the first dreamers from Valbruna up to Monte Lussari. From there, it's a thrilling descent to Camporosso—then back to Valbruna by shuttle. Skiing was pure passion.

1982

THE LUSSARI S.P.A. CHALLENGE

A new lift system breathes life into the resort, but the company folds. In 1993, Promotur steps in—clear vision, bold ambition.

2000

THE TRUE DI PRAMPERO TAKES SHAPE

On December 29, a new lift opens from Camporosso. The Di Prampero slope, designed by Luciano Lazzaro and built by Wieser of Campo Tures, is born—crafted for both tourism and international racing. At first, artificial snow covers only the final two walls. But the goal is clear: elevate Friuli's mountains to greatness.

2001

FIS CERTIFICATION AND SAFETY UPGRADES

Ahead of the 2003 Winter Universiade, the slope is updated to meet FIS safety standards. Instrumental to the process was Helmut Schmalzl—former coach of the Italian national team and FIS Race Director for men's speed events. In his honor, a curve before the mid-station is named "Schmalzl Curve."

2002—
2012

A DECADE OF ADRENALINE

- 3 Women's World Cup races
- Over 60 Europa Cup events
- 2002 Junior World Championships
- 2003 Winter Universiade

Di Prampero secures its place on the international circuit—a perfect blend of gradient, speed, and visibility.

2005

FIRST FIS INSPECTION FOR THE WORLD CUP

Technical experts Kurt Hoch and Jan Tischhauser (FIS) conduct the inspection and recommend a new course variant. In 2006, the FIS Variant is built—enhancing safety and competitiveness.

2005

A FIRE THAT COULDN'T EXTINGUISH A DREAM

On November 8, 2005, a fire devastates the top station of the gondola. For many, it's the end. But not for Tarvisio. In true mountain spirit, a miracle happens: by January 20, 2006, the lift is back in operation. A record-breaking comeback. Di Prampero lives on—stronger than ever.
